

“Knowing how to lose”

Name:

For every father or mother their children are the best in this world and they don't hesitate telling them since they are babies. However, when they go out to the outside world and start mixing with other people, they realize they are not the bests in everything, there is always someone who knows more or makes it better, as there is always someone who knows less and makes it worse. It's essential for them to learn how to lose, and face that they can't always win. If you teach them how to manage failure and the frustration that comes with it, their self-esteem will be reinforced and they will learn not to give up in the future.
